

Architecture – a building with great history

The legendary Grand Hotel Savoy Budapest first opened its doors in 1909 and operated as a first-class hotel. At the end of the imperial and royal monarchy, due to its exclusive downtown location, the hotel became a popular meeting place for artists, intellectuals, and the bourgeoisie. Today, the building still exudes its charm from the Art Nouveau era.

Location – central and accessible

The hotel is situated on the large tree-lined József Boulevard bordering the Palace District, famous for its historical buildings and beautiful squares and only a few steps from Erzsébetváros. The Old Town, main city attractions, shopping streets, restaurants and cafés are all easily accessible either on foot or by public transport. The main stations Blaha Lujza and Rákóczi are a 3-minute walk away and serve M2 and M4 underground lines along with many other trams and bus lines. And if you wish to explore the city in a more relaxing way, the Hop-on Hop-Off bus station is just a few steps away.
